

Responsible & Reliable

Dear Partners and Clients,

One of the most important aspects of business responsibility is being prepared for various scenarios. One of them is currently unfolding in front of our very eyes. Coronavirus is something that turns our world upside down, but it is our duty to deal with the new reality, so as to remain a reliable partner for you regardless of the circumstances. Having taken certain steps well in advance, we can say we are ready to continue our business.

Since health and safety have always been our top priority, we have implemented all the recommendations issued by the authorities and on top of this, we have introduced our own special safety measures, with which we can maintain continuous production and smooth management of Client's orders, while ensuring the safety of our employees.

Many years of investments aimed at boosting an independent production system, mostly based on our own components and organised in a few European plants, helped us stock up on spare parts as well as finished products and now we can complete all orders on time, without any delays. Additionally, we have boosted our online availability, i.a. through expert articles and the pCon configurator, which makes it easy for you to choose products and solutions that best suit your needs. You will learn more about this from our website.

We are available, should you need any assistance.
